©The New York Times

New York — Pressure is mounting on the Department of Agriculture to increase exports of the nation's growing food surpluses as bumper crops of grains and soybeans sharply reduce farm income just weeks before the presidential election.

Washington, confronted by the export problem for the first time since mid-1972, is finding the task difficult, despite today's bargain prices and the availability of easy credit for the purchasers.

The return of the surpluses this year is attributed largely to:

—Crop conditions that are vastly improved this year in most grain-producing regions, according to grain marketing specialists.

—The administration's moratorium on grain exports to the Soviet Union and Poland during the third quarter of 1975, which forced these and other customers to seek supply contracts elsewhere. The moratorium greatly benefited Canada, which has harvested a record crop of its high protein wheat this year, as well as Argentina and Australia, two important competitors.

—President Ford's promise never to impose moratoriums again, except in times of national emergencies, and the widespread belief that the planet's population is outstripping its food supply. These factors have encouraged U.S. farmers to produce at capacity. The nation's wheat farmers, for example, are still holding 75% of the winter wheat they harvested last June and July, and large quantities of their 1975 production.

—The fourfold increase in grain prices between 1972 and 1975 that encouraged many foreign nations to expand agricultural potential in order to reduce costs of imported food.

The administration's sales efforts have been hobbled somewhat by congressional action last December aimed at making it easier for the poorest lands of the globe to receive foodstuffs under concessional terms.

"The law Congress passed," an Agriculture Department official explained in an interview from Washington, "requires that 75% of sales under Public Law 480 — the old Food for Peace program — be allocated to countries with a per-capita income of $300 a year or less.

"It so happens that many of these countries, such as India, Bangladesh and Pakistan, have harvested adequate crops of rice and other grains this season. Their people may not be growing fat, but neither are they in a starvation situation."

The official observed that if the PL480 restriction on sales had not been imposed, "we would have greater markets as well as be in a position to improve diets in countries where the income average is slightly better than $300 a year."

However, one Middle West grain specialist said Congress was motivated "by the fact that decades of the PL480 programs had tended to discourage the development of food production in many countries. After all, how many foreign producers can compete with the Kansas wheat grower?"

Basically, the PL480 program consists of two parts. Under Title I, foreign buyers on the government's approved list usually issue tenders for the six categories of farm products covered by the program — wheat, rice, corn, sorghum, vegetable oil, tobacco and cotton.

Approved exporters who win the bids actually fill the orders after the Agriculture Department checks to see if the price to be paid by the foreign customer is fair. Then the agency arranges the financing, which is usually for many years at a very low interest rate.

Under Title II, the government is authorized to make outright donations, usually through humanitarian organizations, in cases of severe drought, earthquakes and other disasters.

Another branch of the Agriculture Department, the Commodity Credit Corp., operating outside PL480, finances exports at near the going interest rates for periods between six months and three years.

Earlier this week, for example, Poland bought $40 million of wheat and $60 million of feed grains through the CCC.

Overall, Congress has appropriated $866 million for exports under Title I for the fiscal year that began last Oct. 1. Others sums are available to help defray the higher cost involved in shipping half the commodities in American vessels, as required by law.

Probe Is Planned Of Simpson's Invitations

By DICK HOLMAN
Star Staff Writer

The Legislature's Conflicts of Interest Committee chairman said Friday he'll call a meeting next week to investigate a Lincoln senator's use of state-funded materials and a public employee for personal political gain.

"We're going to go on it," Sen. William Skarda of Omaha said when informed of The Lincoln Star's disclosure of Sen. Harold D. Simpson's fund-raising invitations.

"We don't have any recourse," Skarda said. He noted it's the first time his committee has been faced with a possible case of public money used indirectly for business beyond a state senator's official duties.

Simpson, 50, was first elected to the Unicameral in 1966 and is midway through his third term. He is the 1st District Republican candidate for a Public Service Commission six-year term at $20,000 annually. Simpson and his secretary said they wrote his PSC campaign committee invitation to a fund-raising reception on his official letterhead stationery, typed in his Capitol office.

Still at issue is whether the secretary typed the letters on state time and if they were mailed at state expense. One source supplied an unverified report Friday that at least one envelope bore the Capitol mailroom meter postmark.

Simpson said first he used his own stamps, and his secretary said they could have been meter-marked or stamped from the senator's personal supply. "I really don't think I did (use those) because I don't remember stamping a big bunch of them," Marilyn Shaw said.

Simpson said Friday in a second interview, "I really can't tell for sure."

Nebraska's chief election officer, Secretary of State Allen Beermann, said there's nothing in the Corrupt Practices Act that specifically applies to such conduct. The law involves reporting campaign spending and contributions.

"I presume the postage he (Simpson) used will be reported," Beermann said, "by him or his committee. Where he got the stationery (and related items) is purely a legislative matter."

"We've got another consideration to take up," Skarda said. "We'll probably take up both of them at the same time." He wouldn't talk about the other conflict of interest case.

Regarding sanctions, Skarda said, "I don't think we've got enough strength in our laws to do enough." Any penalty would probably amount to issuing a "directive to tell them (senators) to discontinue it."

Skarda said he must evaluate the question first regarding Simpson. Yet state senators enjoy a special immunity.

The State Supreme Court last year upheld a guilty ruling finding the Douglas County clerk had personal anti-union literature printed at county expense and mailed in county-supplied envelopes to public employees.

However, then Atty. Gen. Clarence A. H. Meyer wrote in 1972 that "the Legislature can devise any procedure it sees fit."

The Nebraska Constitution says "the Legislature shall determine the rules of its proceedings." A Supreme Court case found "such authority extends to the determination of the propriety and effect of any action" exercising powers, transacting business, or performing any constitutionally conferred duty.

maintain he'd done no wrong. He got "no flak" from the Legislative Council's executive board. "I really felt a communication between legislators is reasonable," because most are concerned about the PSC race.

But now, he said, he'd not repeat his actions, even though he invited the senators "as friends," not contributors.

"About seven of the senators wrote back on state stationery saying they couldn't come," Simpson said. He discarded the replies and, asked to name the individuals, replied, "I don't want to drag anybody else into the issue."

Simpson disclosed he had individualized letters typed, for example, inviting spouses or not where applicable. But he defended his conduct: "When you're in a part-time legislative business, (it's a) fine line" dividing who benefits from some senatorial actions.

A Dent In Business

Detective Called Getaway Driver

NEW YORK (AP) — A decorated New York City homicide detective was accused at a federal hearing Friday of driving the getaway car in the armed $45,000 robbery of a Manhattan bank in 1971.

The complaint charged that Dennis Mulligan, 39, a suspended detective, got $11,000 as his share of the loot. It was alleged that confidential police information about money deliveries to the First National City Bank branch was provided the three-man bandit team by the detective.

Although the government asked that bail for Mulligan be set at $15,000, U.S. Magistrate Martin Jacobs agreed to accept the defendant's pledge of deeds to his home and to the next-door home of his brother. Mulligan was released to wait arraignment Oct. 28.

Also charged in the case was John Anthony "Bubbe" Cerasani, 38, of Manhattan. The two were accused on the basis of information from two other members of the bandit gang, described as "cooperating individuals" by the government.

The bank stickup was timed just after an armored car had made a cash delivery to the bank. While one man acted as lookout, two others in ski masks drew guns and escaped with the $45,000.

Youth in Action Chess Is Not Just A Game

By PATTY BUETLER
Star Staff Writer

Rod Malpert wants to make a living playing chess.

That's a pretty fair indicator of how serious the young player takes his game.

The 15-year-old East High School sophomore has been moving pawns and knights across the checkered board for five years now.

With practice, study and tournament play, he's worked his way up the ratings ladder. He hopes to earn his masters rating some time this year.

Tied for city champion with Mike Blankenau, Rod is finding a certain loneliness at his level of play. So he takes to the road for tournaments that will pit him against some of the strongest players in the country.

National competitions have found him earning a second place in the junior high competition in Boston and a near-the-top rating for all youngsters under the age of 16. He also finished in the upper eighth among the 600 entrants in the U.S. Open tournament in Washington, D.C., this summer.

Along with Lincolnite Mark Kitchin, Rod has been invited from Nebraska to take part in the Midwest junior championship in Illinois two weeks from now. And this weekend he's competing for the state championship in Lincoln.

Sometimes chess seems like a job to Rod because he has to work at it. He never forces himself to study — "just when I'm in the mood." "You have to have a strong ego to play chess,"

Rod says. "I takes self-motivation. You have to want to be really good."

Rod's got both the desire and the drive that's heading him in the right direction.

"Each year I seem to be headed for where I want to be. But I have to keep at it. It's looking better all the time."

Rod says he can't really idolize someone in chess because his long range goal would be to beat him. "It's hard to idolize someone you want to beat."

The stereotype of chess players and the game by people in this country bothers Rod. "Some people think it's dull and boring. They don't realize the emotions the games bring out."

It takes more than just being "real smart" to be a chess player, says Rod. Imagination, creativity and logic are important. "And sometimes you have to be kinda brave," he adds.

Rod is willing to help weaker players when they need it. "I remember when I was a weak player and wanted people to help me out," he says.

Most chess players, Rod has found, are older than he is. "It seems stranger to be around 20 people my own age than 20 people 10 years older."

But Rod's kept in touch by letter with many of the younger players he's met at tournaments out of state. In fact, he's even playing a game by mail with a friend in New York City.

The son of Mr. and Mrs. Merlin Malpert of 520 N. 81st, Rod says, "You have to be pretty good before you can understand what tournaments are like. You probably have more misconceptions if you learn to play just a little bit."

He's New Houdini

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — John R. Luttrell doesn't like to be chained up — especially in front of a crowd. So twice this week he has used his uncanny ability as an escape artist to remove the chains placed on him by jail guards.

Luttrell, 26, is known to police as "a Houdini" for his escapes from jails, handcuffs and ankle chains. Officers here didn't want to take any chances while he was in their custody on two armed robbery charges so they placed him in chains.

Twice he shed the heavy ankle chains like a professional magician, once during a hearing before a judge who was setting his trial date.

How did he do it? "Well, you know, if you are watching my right hand, if I've got your attention with my right hand, you can't tell what my left hand is doing," Luttrell said Friday. "It's easy to do if you know what you're doing."

Luttrell, who says he learned to pick locks while in prison, pulled off his latest escapes after he was taken to the courthouse and placed in a holdover cell, where the guards shackled his feet.

When they came to get him, the shackles were off. The guards put the chains back on and escorted the young prisoner to the courtroom. After the hearing, the guards noticed something startling — the chains were gone.

"They were too tight," he said in an interview at the Jefferson County Jail. "When they put them on me at first, I didn't feel like walking out in front of a bunch of people wearing leg shackles like an animal."

"They were very uncomfortable. I just felt I shouldn't be in front of a crowd of people in leg shackles. It would have been humiliating. While the judge was talking, I reached down with one hand and freed myself."

Luttrell, born in Jeffersonville, Ind., and raised in Detroit and Louisville, has been in and out of jails since he was 17.

He said he's escaped from a county jail, a city jail, once while "under guard" at a reformatory, "three or four times from Army stockades and twice from a reformatory in Michigan."

Luttrell thinks it's absurd that guards have drawn a comparison between him and the famous Houdini but refuses to reveal his escape secrets.

"If everyone knew how to do it, then my thing would be lost," he said.

"The escapes, the shackles coming off, it's nothing I plan, it's just something that happens at the spur of the moment."

Judge: Police Not Entitled To City's Wage Package

By LYNN ZERSCHLING
Star Staff Writer

The Nebraska Court of Industrial Relations has denied a request by the Lincoln Police Union for increased pay and other benefits while the original wage dispute is being tried in court.

The union wanted the city to pay a 6% wage hike and grant increased insurance coverage and an extra holiday awarded to other city employees. However, since the police union rejected a contract including those proposals, police officers are not receiving the wage package.

While denying the union's request, Judge Richard DeBacker of Grand Island ordered the city to "refrain from engaging in any conduct or activity which is intended to or which tends to intimidate" the union or members of union or which would encourage police officers to dissolve the union.

In a hearing before DeBacker last week, the union contended that city officials were harassing union membership and were trying to penalize officers for joining the union by refusing to grant the wage increase and other fringe benefits.

DeBacker said in his written opinion the city's failure to grant increases to police officers is not discriminatory. That action wasn't intended by the city to intimidate the union, DeBacker said.

The police union also claimed that a statement by Mayor Helen Bosilis on a Lincoln radio station on Sept. 8 also could be considered a threat to union membership.

In that radio broadcast, the mayor reportedly said some officers might have to be laid off should the courts grant police higher wages. No money was available to pay a greater amount than the city budgeted, Mrs. Bosilis said.

Based upon the limited amount of information available to the court, DeBacker said he "is not in a position to conclude that the mayor's comments were designed to intimidate" the union or its members.

But, "Out of an abundance of caution, nevertheless, a protective order will be issued."

DeBacker also noted that the city is not required to pay increased wages and benefits while the case is being tried. The city could have implemented its last offer made in negotiations without violating the unfair labor practice act, DeBacker said.

The police union initially asked for a 25% salary increase and lowered that request to 15%.

The new wages for other city employees went into effect Sept. 1. No date has been set for a hearing in the Court of Industrial Relations on the main wage dispute.

Ford Still Tries To Explain Remark; Carter Hits Foe's Credibility

By The Associated Press
Jimmy Carter mounted a sharp new assault on President Ford's finances and credibility Friday, while Ford was still explaining his remarks on Eastern Europe in the face of new criticism from Democrats and ethnic leaders.
Demanding that Ford hold a formal news conference to "tell the truth, tell the whole truth and nothing but the truth," Carter used some of the harshest language of his campaign to list alleged presidential inconsistencies and discrepancies.

Carter ticked off Ford's Eastern Europe statements, his denial that he turned campaign money to personal use, and his claim that he sought legislation against the Arab boycott and acted to stop nuclear proliferation.
Meanwhile, Ford was still tied up with one of those topics: Eastern Europe.
At his first appearance Friday, before a group of business and professional men in Los Angeles, Ford initially avoided the subject by delivering instead his standard criticism of Carter's tax and spending proposals. But when he turned to questions, there it was.

One man said he was more concerned about Eastern Europe than southern Africa and asked if Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger could be sent to negotiate greater freedom for the East Bloc countries.
Ignoring the suggestion, Ford for the first time admittedly amended his statement from Wednesday night's debate that "there is no Soviet domination of Eastern Europe."

"What I meant to say," Ford told his questioner, was that the United States does not recognize Soviet domination of Eastern Europe and never will. That's what Ford had told a University of Southern California crowd Thursday, but at that time he didn't call it a clarification or retract his previous remarks.
To laughter from his audience, Ford said of his debate comment: "It has been alleged by some that I wasn't as precise as I should have been the other day."

It's time for Mr. Ford to... let the American people know the answers to some of these discrepancies.
The Democratic candidate said Ford apparently "was brainwashed if he thinks that Poland is free of Soviet dominance."
"Apparently when Mr. Ford went to Poland, as happened to George Romney the last time, he was brainwashed," Carter said. He referred to a statement that contributed to Romney's withdrawal from the race for the 1968 GOP presidential nomination. Romney said U.S. officials in Vietnam had brainwashed him into supporting the war.
Carter cited an Internal Revenue Service report prepared while Ford was being reviewed by Congress for the vice presidency. According to Thursday's Wall Street Journal, the IRS report shows Ford used money from a campaign committee bank account to pay for clothing and a family ski vacation. Ford later reimbursed the committee.
Again citing the IRS document, Carter said, "It's reported that he only spent on personal expenses out of his own pocket $5 a week for himself and his family. There seems to be a discrepancy here."
The Journal's version of the IRS report actually said the $5 a week applied only to Ford's out-of-pocket expenses, not those of his family members.
On the other points Carter mentioned, Ford said he wanted legislation against the Arab boycott of Israel and promoted international efforts to stop the spread of nuclear weapons.
However, during the last Congress, some Cabinet members opposed anti-boycott legislation. And State Department officials have argued against some proposed legislation to halt nuclear proliferation.
At a second stop in Albuquerque, Carter referred to another of what he called Ford's discrepancies. Noting that Ford promised during the debate that the administration would name U.S. companies that "have participated" in the Arab boycott, Carter pointed out that the government now says it will only name future participants.

Meantime, the government's monthly report on unemployment barely nudged its way into the campaign.
At his first appearance Thursday, Ford cited the jobless rate decline and said, "We're moving in the right direction."
It was reminiscent of Carter's first appearance of the day before. The Democrat read off that day's government report showing the biggest jump in wholesale prices in 11 months had come during September. He then reminded his audience that inflation and jobless rates had hit record highs since the Republicans took over the White House in 1968.
On unemployment, the Carter campaign said Friday, "These developments show that production is not strong enough to put our people back to work and that those who want to work and cannot find jobs are simply giving up and dropping out of the labor force."
Carter has used the economic issue heavily in courting ethnic groups in populous northeastern and north-central states, where Democrats fear his Southern Baptist religion may put off the Catholic voters that Ford has actively sought.
Ford's amplification Thursday, that he would never concede dominance of Eastern Europe to the Soviet Union, was not enough for some ethnic leaders.
Aloysius A. Mazurski, president of the Polish-American Congress, said Friday: "His remarks did not directly deal with the issue at hand. The Polish-American Congress demands an answer which would obliterate his previous contention that there is no Soviet domination of Eastern Europe."

FORD LOSES VOTES... of up to 1 million Polish-Americans in Chicago, according to Edward Nowak of an ethnic league.

Unemployment Goes Down To 7.8%

WASHINGTON (AP) — Unemployment edged downward in September, but the thin improvement was countered by a decline in the government's measurement of the number of Americans with jobs, leaving the nation's job picture virtually unchanged.
The Labor Department said Friday in its final report before the election that the jobless rate edged down from 7.9 to 7.8% after rising for three consecutive months.
However, total employment also dropped, and department analysts said neither change was large enough to have statistical significance.
The drop in the number of people in the work force was bigger than the drop in the number of people out of work. That is why the number of people unemployed as a percentage of the work force was down.

month, their fastest one-month rate in nearly a year.
The administration contends the "pause" in the business recovery will end soon and predicts a faster pace later this year and in 1977. But the Democrats and some independent economists contend the recovery is running out of gas and needs new stimulus.
"The drop in the unemployment rate is encouraging," said Irwin Kellner, vice president of Manufacturers Hanover Trust in New York. "But it is not a sign that the economic recovery has once again accelerated."
At 7.8%, the unemployment rate is higher than the peaks reached during any of the previous recessions since the Great Depression. Not since 1940 has it been higher during a presidential election.
Unemployment last month totaled 7.4 million, about 122,000 fewer than in August.

again that economic conditions continue to deteriorate.
"These developments show that production is not strong enough to put our people back to work and that those who want to work and cannot find jobs are simply giving up and dropping out of the labor force," he said.
The job figures were the latest in a string of statistics indicating the economy is stuck on a plateau after spurting out of the recession.
Coupled with rising prices and two quarters of reduced economic growth, the lack of improvement on the jobs front has raised concern over the future strength of the recovery from recession.
On Thursday, the Labor Department reported that wholesale prices jumped by nine-tenths of a percentage point last

But at the same time, total employment declined 162,000 from the month before to 87.8 million. The civilian labor force, meaning persons with jobs plus those seeking them, was put at 95.2 million, down 280,000 from August.

Nonetheless, President Ford found comfort in the decline in joblessness. "We're moving in the right direction, but not with make-work jobs at the taxpayer's expense," he said in a Los Angeles campaign speech.
Democratic presidential candidate Jimmy Carter said the new figures "prove the drop in the number of people in the work force was bigger than the drop in the number of people out of work. That is why the number of people unemployed as a percentage of the work force was down.

Nixon Says Hiss Typewriter Was Faked, Dean Writes

New York (UPI) — John Dean says in a forthcoming book entitled "Blind Ambition" that Richard Nixon told Charles Colson the typewriter that helped convict Alger Hiss of perjury was a fake.
A copy of the book — published by Simon and Schuster — was purchased Friday by United Press International.
The volume contains a single passage about Hiss — one stemming from Nixon's worry about a memo in which Dita Beard, who worked as a public relations aide for ITT, implied that a big political contribution to the GOP from the multinational corporation would wipe out the government's pending anti-trust suit.

Dean writes that Nixon attempted to have the memo pronounced a forgery, and assigned Colson to do the job. The former White House lawyer adds that when Colson reported to the president, Nixon said he was reminded of the Hiss case which propelled then Congressman Nixon into national prominence.

He quotes Nixon as saying to Colson: "The typewriters are always the key. We built one in the Hiss case." The typewriter was perhaps the most important piece of evidence that brought a guilty verdict against Hiss in 1950 by a jury and sent him to prison for four years for perjury.
Hiss' attorneys tried to get a new trial in 1952, contending that the serial number on Hiss' Woodstock typewriter did not match the typeface of documents that Hiss was charged with having typed. The motion was denied.

Whittaker Chambers, a Time magazine editor and Hiss' main accuser, claimed the typewriter had been employed to copy material from Hiss' State Department office. These documents, furnished by Chambers, were offered as evidence that Hiss was implicated in espionage, although he never was tried on spy charges.

The FBI compared the typed portion of this material to correspondence that had been typed on Hiss' Woodstock machine and found that it matched.

Chambers, to the day of his death, stood by his charges against Hiss, who denied through the years that he had typed any of the material.
Supporters of Hiss charged that the material had been faked, perhaps with a phony typewriter manufactured to display the same typeface as the Hiss machine.
Nixon was a congressman from California at the time he investigated the Hiss affair. It was his work on this case which catapulted him to national fame and made him a desirable running mate for Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower in 1952.

Hurricane Strikes Mexican West Coast

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Hurricane Madeline smashed into Mexico's Pacific coast Friday with winds gusting to 161 miles per hour and dumped torrential rains over a wide area, the government weather service said.
Police and the Red Cross said the second hurricane to hit Mexico's west coast in a week killed at least two persons and injured others.
They said the high winds and rain destroyed crops and snarled transportation and communications in at least 11 states stretching from the Pacific coast eastward almost to the Gulf of Mexico.

Landslides blocked numerous highways in west central Mexico, including the main road from Mexico City to the famous Pacific resort of Acapulco, where authorities said at least three persons were injured, none seriously.
Police said two persons drowned at Chilpancingo, the capital of Guerrero state, where flooding rivers swept away more than 200 houses, most of them wood shanties or adobe huts.

Boy Talks Sprinkler

Prosser, Wash. (AP) — Some kids speak pig latin. Kenny Lewis speaks sprinkler.
With a "tick, tick, tick," Kenny, 11, practices his wordless language at home, and his mother, Mrs. Kenneth Lewis, says she's gotten used to the sound.
"He's been fascinated about sprinklers since he was 2," said Mrs. Lewis. "I've wondered at times whether it's normal for a boy to go around making sounds like a sprinkler, but I guess it's a hobby like anything else," she said.
"If you listen closely, each sprinkler has its own cadence," said Kenny.
Sprinkler clicks are as common as wheat in central Washington, where irrigation has turned desert to farmland.
But Kenny is a sprinkler expert.
He imitates small lawn models and giant cannon sprinklers, even adjusting his imitations to allow for a loss of water pressure or mechanical malfunction.
Kenny used to be interested in windshield wipers, but that phase passed, said Mrs. Lewis.

Court Rules Retirement Before 65 Discriminatory

Washington (UPI) — A U.S. appeals court has ruled that a United Airlines pension plan forcing employees to retire before age 65 violates the law banning age discrimination.
Officials said the decision handed down in Richmond, Va., "has potentially enormous ramifications" because several million persons are covered by the pension plans that either require or permit forced retirement based solely on age prior to 65.
The appeals court reversed a district court decision that held in favor of United. The Labor Department supported the employed who challenged the legality of the requirement.
The appeals court rules unanimously that retirement prior to age 65 is illegal unless justified by considerations other than age. It concluded that the 1967 law applied even though United's pension plan was in existence when the law passed.

Soviets Want Renewed Geneva Mideast Talks

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — The Soviet Union, declaring that a new war may break out in the Middle East "at any moment," called Friday for immediate resumption of the Middle East conference in Geneva.
"The situation in this region is extremely precarious and unstable," the Soviet government said in a note to Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim. "The red-hot tension in the Middle East is not abating."

The Soviet Union has on numerous occasions asked for the reopening of the Geneva forum, but it was the first time Moscow set a date and proposed an agenda which included international guarantees for the security of Israel.
The Soviet proposal came a week after Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger told the U.N. General Assembly that the United States was prepared to participate in an early resumption of the work of the Geneva conference.

The Soviet note suggests the conference be staged in two phases, one preliminary and the other substantive. Kissinger also said a preparatory conference might be useful for a discussion of the "structure" of future negotiations.
The Soviet government continued to insist on Palestinian participation in both sessions, a condition that has been unacceptable to the United States.

More Iraqi Troops Reinforce Palestinians In Lebanon, Leftists Say

Beirut, Lebanon (AP) — Leftist sources here said Friday that 1,200 Iraqi troops with tanks and rocket launchers arrived in two ships this week to reinforce Palestinian guerrillas and leftist militias in the Lebanese civil war.
The sources said the troops had been airlifted to Egypt and transported by sea to the southern Lebanese port of Sidon, a leftist-Palestinian stronghold.

The reinforcements are regular army troops and tank crews, the sources said.
Their arrival brings to some 4,000 the number of Iraqis, Iraqi-based Palestinians and Libyans sent to fight in Lebanon, the sources said. The presence of hundreds of Iraqi fighters in Lebanon has been independently confirmed by direct observation but not the total figure.

The Iraqis were sent to bolster defenses of guerrillas and leftists who are confronting right-wing Christian private armies and a Syrian intervention force of up to 21,000 troops and 800 tanks.

State Department Official Notes Hemispheric Issues

By HARRY JACKSON
Star Staff Writer

The chief state department advisor on Latin American affairs outlined Friday "an agenda" of issues which will face the United States in that area in the future.

Malcolm R. Barnebey, advisor on Latin American foreign policy in the state department's Bureau of Inter-American Affairs, who spoke Friday to the annual conference of the Midwest Association of Latin American Studies, (MALAS), pointed to three areas.

The areas included the economies of Latin America, human rights policies of those countries and miscellaneous problems which face individual countries and the U.S.

Concerning bolstering economic stability in Latin America, Barnebey said: "We often tend to forget that most other countries in this hemisphere have been going through a recession much worse than our own."

He attributed the recessions to runaway inflation — in some cases, like in Argentina, 100% annually — caused by quadrupled prices in oil and tripled cereal grain prices especially for wheat.

He then pointed to the lower prices the countries are getting for their own manufactured products, especially sugar.

For example, he said, Brazil has $1 billion to $1½ billion more going to the U.S. than coming back to the country.

He said that a conference for the Organization of American States (OAS) to be held next year would deal with the problems. OAS is a treaty organization which includes Latin America and the U.S.

The U.S. intends to use money muscle to pressure Latin American countries to insure "universally recognized" human rights, Barnebey said, with "... the main problems (being) excesses of both left-wing and right-wing terrorist groups."

In response to human rights violations, Barnebey said the U.S. has refused loans and cut off military aid to Chile and Uruguay and is considering the same action against Brazil.

The final area he dealt with included the U.S.'s involvement in bilateral dealings with individual countries.

The major problem, he said would be with Panama over the Canal Zone.

He didn't say whether or not he favors giving the zone to the Panamanians, but he did say. "We are determined to proceed expeditiously with the negotiations, and to reach a fair and mutually acceptable settlement, one which will continue to assure our permanent access — on an equitable and non-discriminatory basis — to the canal."

He also mentioned a floundering Panamanian economy that needs help.

President Ford has said many times publicly that the U.S. has no intention of giving up the Canal Zone but may allow more Panamanian involvement in its operation.

The MALAS conference is being hosted by the University of Nebraska-Lincoln's Institute of International Studies at the Nebraska Center for Continuing Education.

The theme of the conference is "Relations Between Latin America and the United States: A Contribution to the United States Bicentennial." More than 150 persons heard Barnebey's speech.

Barnebey was born in Omaha and has been with the state department since 1952. He currently lives in Texas. He said he's spent seven of the last eight years in Latin America.

Ziebarth Urges Reconsideration Of Appointment

Kearney — Former State Sen. Wayne Ziebarth of Wilcox has called for the termination of former Sen. Gerald Stromer of Kearney as the next executive secretary of the Nebraska Association of County Officials.

Stromer has been tapped to take over the post from retiring Arnold Ruhnke at the end of the year.

In a letter to John Paris of Crawford, chairman of the county officials group, Ziebarth charged that although Stromer had promised he would cease his political activity after receiving the appointment, he continues to serve as Buffalo County Republican chairman.

Ziebarth, who was the Democratic nominee for Congress from the 3rd District two years ago, said that when he and Stromer served together in the Unicameral, Stromer was "the most partisan of the non-partisan members."

Ziebarth suggested Stromer's continued affiliation with the county group would "cast a very serious shadow" on the nonpartisan county officials association.

Ziebarth termed the choice of Stromer by the association "a most unfortunate choice."

Ziebarth told newsmen Thursday night he would send the letter to Paris Friday. He said he would send similar letters to each member of the executive board of the county officials group.

Stromer was out of town and unavailable for comment Friday.

Feeders, Ranchers Group To Release Merger Study

The study committee appointed to look into a possible merger between the American National Cattlemen's Association (ANCA) and the National Livestock Feeders Association (NLFA) will make its first public report in Kansas City Monday, Oct. 18.

"This won't be an announcement of any merger. It will be a report on the extent of progress that has been made so far in their discussions," said Bill Jones, a consultant with NLFA.

"There won't be any leaks of the report before the meeting because it will be available only to three staff members until an hour or so prior to the meeting."

ANCA is primarily a ranchers organization while the NLFA is mostly an organization of livestock feeders.

In Nebraska the stock growers belonging to the ANCA affiliate has members who raise hogs and sheep. The Nebraska Livestock Feeders Association also includes non-cattle raising members.

One important issue has been whether these non-cattle raisers and feeders could continue membership, officials said.

Another area of concern is whether the normal adversary relationship between the rancher and feeder over feeder cattle prices might be an obstacle to a merger of the two groups.

Offutt Will Get Computer Setup

Washington (UPI) — The Air Force Department has awarded a $1.8-million grant to IBM of Bethesda, Md., for a computer system to be located at Offutt Air Force Base in Omaha, Rep. John Y. McCollister, R-Nebr., announced Friday.

McCollister said the grant permits a one-year lease on the computer, which is designed to upgrade systems for strategic targeting and missile planning.

Better Safe Than Sorry?

A contributor to the Today's Mail column recently discussed the now-famous Playboy interview and observed in part:

"Carter must have known that questions of sexual morality would arise in the interview, and that whatever position he took, he would incur the wrath, justly or not, of some part of the electorate. An intelligent politician would avoid such a dilemma if possible."

Phony politicians — and dangerous ones — have avoided such dilemmas, too.

One of the worst features of contemporary politics is the premium given those who play it safe. Despite the abuse and overuse of the word by the incumbent president and his predecessor, candor is a commodity hard to come by in American political life. Most politicians play it safe by keeping their mouth shut on controversial issues great and small and the electorate would probably rather have it that way.

But creating an atmosphere in which playing it safe is rewarded creates problems sooner or later.

All sorts of political hoodlums manage to secure themselves in power by keeping discreetly quiet or telling the people only what they want to hear.

One can hardly imagine Mr. Nixon talking about lust in public, let alone using a lowbrow magazine as a forum for such an unseemly discussion — although the exiled resignee did lower himself to appear in a Laugh-In sequence or two. That must have really bruised his dignity.

But for the most part, Nixon, as most other politicians, would rather have talked about nice, safe things — "Let's discuss what's right about America . . ." The law'n order campaign of 1968 was a classic subterfuge. The ticket told the people what they wanted to hear in middle American terms and the administration went on to help overpopulate the prisons and probation offices of the nation, severely damaging the political art in the process and making cynical a whole generation of Americans. So much for playing it safe in one's public speech.

The point is not that Carter's public talk of lust will of certainty cleanse the political process. But such candor — however tasteless — will not hurt politics and may help reveal the lack of virtue in always playing it safe.

In the future perhaps more "intelligent politicians" will refuse to cringe in fear of incurring the wrath of some part of the electorate and will instead be persuaded that leveling with the electorate is the better course. When that is the accepted way, we'll all benefit.

Was It Deceit?

In his Thursday night references to Eastern Europe and the Arab boycott in the Middle East, President Ford was, at best, skirting the edge of deceit. Eastern Europe, he said, was not dominated by the Soviet Union and never would be under his administration.

Now he has changed the statement to read that his administration does not concede the Soviet domination. The correction really does nothing for the original statement.

In his remarks Thursday, there was no equivocation in the matter, as he even singled out Yugoslavia, Romania and Poland as nations that considered themselves independent of Russia. Rightly so, the President's assertion has been widely criticized as incredible.

On the boycott subject, Ford said he would release the names of those American companies that have participated in the Arab boycott against Israel. But as it turns out, the administration will not release the names of those companies that have participated. It will release the names of those who participate from now on. An administration official explained the difference as one of semantics.

A semantical difference is possible. A clarification may have been all that was needed in the matter of Eastern Europe's relations with Russia.

It takes a heavy dose of faith and confidence, however, to accept either the semantical or clarification distinctions. At best, both statements were blunders. At worse, they were out and out deceit, calculated to shade the truth and gain a small political advantage.

We believe the majority weight of opinion will come down on the side of deceit, that most people believe that Ford knew what he was saying and deliberately tried to twist the facts for his own benefit.

It is the kind of thing that has bothered the American people for so long in the political affairs of the nation. It is the kind of thing that has caused a great many people to not believe anything they are told by men and women in public life, that has fostered the widespread apathy that exists among the electorate.

In the heat of a campaign, a lot of mistakes are made by both sides but they do not create the crisis of confidence that the President has now created for himself. He has weakened himself in an area that was considered a major strength.

CHARLES B. SEIB

The Use Of Media Influence

WASHINGTON — The folks who determine your news diet think they have too much influence and wish they had less, the Washington Post tells us.

This bit of news is extracted from a poll of leadership groups conducted by the Post and the Harvard University Center for International Affairs.

More than 300 media "leaders," mostly Washington-based reporters and their bosses, were questioned. While they rated themselves near the top among influential groups, they felt they should be lower on the list.

By contrast, leaders of other groups — black, feminist, farm, business, politics — saw their own groups as ranking low in actual influence but deserving to be at the top of the list.

The Post-Harvard findings seem a little tenuous to me. I doubt that they provide more than a hint of how news people really feel about their role in society. But taking them at face value, I have a suggestion:

Media leaders should worry less about having more influence than they want and more about what they are doing with the influence they have.

Plenty of areas where this suggestion could be applied come to mind in this political season. Journalists could profitably study, for example, how much their influence was involved in making a major campaign issue of one brief macho passage in Jimmy Carter's Playboy interview.

Another area I'd like to suggest for study: whether minor candidates are properly treated by the press.

Journalistic judgments must be made, of course: a thinly supported outsider cannot be given the kind of coverage accorded a strong Democrat or Republican. Yet there is always the danger that such judgments will be self-fulfilling — that a candidate who is denied coverage because he is not going anywhere is, because of that denial, not going anywhere.

I am talking about all levels of elective office — local, state and national — but there is a particularly striking example at the national level right now: the candidacy of Eugene McCarthy.

McCarthy is a serious politician with a record of service and at least vestiges of a large national following. He will be on the ballot in most states. In this lackluster campaign between Jimmy Carter and Gerald Ford, it is not insane to suppose that he will attract a goodly number of protest votes.

There is no reason to think that McCarthy can win. But with the apparent narrowing of the distance between Carter and Ford, there must be a possibility that his success in attracting voters could decide who wins.

In view of all this, McCarthy should be getting some of the manpower and news space devoted to the presidential campaign. The fact is, so far as national coverage goes, he is virtually a nonperson, or at least a noncandidate. His speeches seldom get more than local coverage and little effort is made to assay his strength or to determine whether it is growing or diminishing. The press should consider the wisdom of this form of benign neglect.

Media leaders are right to feel uneasy about the influence they wield. It is tremendous; there's no doubt about that. But there is no way they can abdicate it or the responsibilities it carries. They can only resolve to do the best they can with it.

Where does the press draw the line on dirty words? Between Jimmy Carter and Earl Butz, it seems.

When Carter got earthy in his Playboy interview, his exact words were reported in most of the print press (the New York Times being a notable exception) and on two of the three commercial networks.

But as far as I can tell, few newspapers or broadcasters have used the exact text of the Secretary of Agriculture's infamous insult to blacks, as reported in Rolling Stone. Instead, various euphemisms have been used, ranging from the almost-explicit to the deceptively vague.

I am not about to argue that Butz's language was fit for publication. It was worse than Carter's, and I think the bars have been lowered as far as they should be. The euphemisms served their purpose. They gave the public the essential fact: that Butz told a racist joke of towering vulgarity and viciousness.

That should suffice, except for an awkward twist the story has taken.

A number of Republicans, including the vice-presidential candidate, have said that Butz's language was no worse than Carter's in Playboy. Since Butz's exact words have not been published in the general press, the public has no basis on which to weigh that statement. And somehow, I think that Carter comes out the loser, even though Butz is the man who lost his job.

Again, I am not arguing that the words Butz used should have been published. Nor am I arguing that Carter's words should not have been published. I do say, though, that the press finds itself in a strange position on the dirty language front.

Free At Last

"Stanley, I just got a letter from my sister in America, and she has great news."

"Listen, Chester, I'm sick of your sister and her letters. All week I work in the Warsaw Foundry to earn the price of a bicycle wheel, and she writes that she has a new station wagon. What is it this time, another six-flat?"

"No, Stanley, this time the good news is about us."

"Us who?"
"Us Poland."
"What's the good news. Have they stopped telling jokes about us?"

"Stanley, we are free at last."

"Who?"
"Poland. We are autonomous. We are no longer dominated by Russia."
"Chester, I thought you were my friend."

"But I am your friend."

"Then why have you been drinking vodka without offering me any?"

"I haven't been drinking vodka."

"Then your sister has been drinking vodka."

"Stanley, I am serious. We are free."

"Who says so?"

"The President of the United States."

"I don't believe it."

"I'll read to you from her letter. Last night the President was on television having a debate. He said Poland is not dominated by Russia. He said

Poles don't consider themselves dominated by Russia. He said Poland is autonomous." See, Stanley, read it yourself."

"Does she say what the punch line is?"

"The what?"

"Chester, you dummy, it is obviously another Polish joke. I keep telling you, they love making dumb jokes about us."

"But this was their president. He wouldn't tell a joke."

"Sure he would. He's the funny one. That's why they put him in there. Everybody in America was gloomy because of their Watergate president, so they decided to have a funny president to cheer them up. So he falls off airplanes, and hits himself on the head, and makes them laugh. He's the one they call President Palooka."

"But I can't believe he would make a joke about our freedom."

"Why not? Didn't his own agricultural secretary make a joke about their own black people? He said that all they like is sex, comfortable shoes and warm toilets. I'm not sure if I understand that one, though, because I like those things, too. Especially the comfortable shoes."

"But if it was a joke, there would have to be some kind of punch line, and it's not in the letter."

"Your sister probably missed it. It probably was something like this. 'The Poles are free.' That's nice; send me two of them."

"I don't believe it."

Speaker Thwarts Conspiracy

WASHINGTON — Sources close to Speaker Carl Albert say he could have been President today if he had been willing to manipulate the congressional machinery.

In discussions so secret that staff members were excluded, some Democratic colleagues urged Albert in 1973 to hold up the confirmation of Gerald Ford to be Vice President. This would have left the Speaker next in line for the presidency.

The Democratic schemers predicted that the embattled Richard Nixon, then in the last ditches of his presidency, would be impeached. He was unworthy, they argued, to select his own successor.

All Albert had to do, they suggested, was to delay Ford's confirmation and wait for Nixon to be impeached. Then under the Constitution, Albert could take over the White House and bring the Democrats to power.

strategy discussions. Some argued that it would amount to a Democratic coup and, therefore, would alienate the voters. Others contended that the Republicans had been so badly discredited by Watergate that a Democratic takeover would be best for the country.

Our sources disagree over how serious the Democrats were about blocking Nixon's vice presidential selection. Some say the idea never got beyond loose talk. Others insist that if Albert had gone along, Ford's confirmation would have been obstructed.

One top Democrat, privy to the backstage discussions, told us that Albert could have become President merely by remaining neutral. It took Albert's active opposition, said our source, to thwart the scheme.

All our sources agree that the Speaker refused to hold up Ford's confirmation. During one discussion, he cited the second section of the 25th amendment to the Constitution. It states

"Well, maybe it went like this: 'Say, did you hear that Poland is free?' 'It is.' 'Sure, they couldn't find anybody to buy it, so they're giving it away.'"

"That's not funny."

"Well, what's funny about loose shoes, sex and warm toilets? Maybe the Republicans don't tell good jokes."

"You're wrong, Chester. An American president wouldn't lie to us."

"Why not? Are we any better than his own people?"

"I believe he wasn't joking, and he was telling the truth, and I'm going to prove it."

"How?"

"I've made up these posters. I'm going to put them on the walls in downtown Warsaw. Look at them."

"Let's see. Wow. You're really going to put this up — a sign that says: 'Brezhnev is Gay?' and this one — 'Moscow is the World's Biggest Pig Pen?'"

"You bet I will. And then I'm going to take a hammer and deface any Russian statues I can find."

"Chester, are you really going to do that?"

"Darn right. I've been waiting for years to do this."

"Then I have bad news for you, Chester."

"What bad news, Stanley?"

"The name isn't Stanley. It is Boris. Col. Boris, in fact. Come with me. Hup, hup, hup . . ."

Free Access To Shows

Lincoln, Neb. Congratulations to the Nebraska State Fair for bringing such excellent talent to the 1976 State Fair. I have heard of many who said they would have attended more but to pay the gate fee of $1.50 per person plus the $5.00 reserved seat made it too high so they had to pick just one attraction.

Some fairs, such as the Texas State Fair allows free gate admission with a reserved seat to the Music Hall productions or football events. Parking, of course, is additional. I do not see why Nebraska could not do likewise for those who are just interested in the show.

It seems like they could use the south entrance to the Field House. It allows no pass-outs to the grounds, the exhibit area in the fieldhouse is sealed off and after the shows are over the only thing open would be the midway. So, I do not see where the fair would stand to lose, and would probably be able to get a larger attendance for some of the shows that were pretty weak. Just something that should be considered for 1977.

City Hall 'Madness'

Lincoln, Neb. Lamur W. Bray's letter to The Star Oct. 2 appears to be the thoughts of most Lincolinites. A "rip-off" of taxpayers, that's for sure.

In the same paper is an even more unbelievable plan. This is the $70 million to be spent on more street priorities — that's on top of the loop and O St. being jazzed up. I think someone is out of their cotton pickin' mind.

Just as New York went bankrupt spending so stupidly, so will Lincoln "go bust" if taxpayers can't stop City Hall madness.

Anyway, what in the world brought about this sudden passion for miles and miles of unneeded ribbons of gray cement? Someone gonna get a kickback?

Put your voices to work, taxpayers, before it's too late and you and generations to follow are bled to death with taxes.

Palsy Center Needs Help

Lincoln, Neb. Western Lancaster County Jaycettes are concerned about losing the Lincoln Cerebral Palsy Developmental Center facility. This center helps cerebral palsy children through the developmental period by working with the child in physical therapy, speech therapy and helping develop the child as a whole person in a normal learning process.

We are concerned because there is no other facility available in Lincoln to help these children and the doors have been closed due to lack of funds.

We have a very personal interest in this center and our chapter has taken this on as a Community Action Project to raise money to keep the school open.

If you care, and want to help please contact our chapter at 4900 W. Kingsley, 799-2743 or 489-6877. Your help would be much appreciated.

For Fowler

Lincoln, Neb. At campaign headquarters in 1972 I was impressed with the quiet efficiency of a young man running for his first public office. He was elected and is now running again, and not only his district but all of Nebraska will suffer if he is not returned to our Legislature.

For Sen. Fowler's only special interest group is composed of us, Nebraska citizens, and the bills he introduces or those he supports concern the welfare of more than just those in his district.

He speaks well and to the point. In just two years he became chairman of the Urban Affairs Committee, a responsible post. It is the informed citizen who will really be interested in government and therefore Sen. Fowler tries to provide ways for educating voters about issues and bills.

I have attended many legislative sessions these past two years and conclude that Sen. Fowler has become a legislator whom we cannot afford to lose.

Playground Antics Get New Lift

By J. L. SCHMIDT
Star Staff Writer

Students at St. John's Elementary School are reaping the rewards of eating breakfast cereal and home-baked goodies.

Months of Post Toasties for breakfast, and baked goods and pop at bingo games, have paid off in playground equipment for the school through the cooperation and dedication of the Home-School Association.

Association members include parents and teachers of the 288 students who attend kindergarten through eighth grade at the 7601 Vine St. school. Their drive for funds began in September, 1975, and resulted in more than $2,000 for the project.

Students at the Catholic elementary schools in Lincoln don't pay tuition, just a book fee, so the association plays a vital role in providing services for the students, according to Father James Dawson, diocesan superintendent.

Pat Waldren, of the association, said that members baked refreshments for bingo game participants, sold them and donated the profits to the equipment fund. Then, on a crisp October Saturday morning, they installed the merry-go-round, wavy slide, see-saw teeter-totter and eight swings.

The equipment was purchased in cooperation with two Omaha schools for "a price break," Mrs. Waldren said. The master plan for playground layout was offered by Larry Group of the City Parks and Recreation Dept., she added.

An additional note: Members of the St. John's Parish hold services in a converted auditorium at the school.

"We built the school (in January 1959) before we built our church," Mrs. Waldren added, "because we really care about our kids."

That attitude carries throughout the system. Dawson said that the "no tuition" policy is system-wide in the elementary schools because "we don't want to price education out of the reach of the families."

The bidding:
East Pass West Pass North 1♥
Pass Pass Pass 3♥
Pass 3♥ Pass 3♥
Pass 4♥ Pass 5♦
Pass 5 NT Pass 6♣
Pass 7♣

This deal occurred in a national team-of-four championship. As happens so often, there were many different results at the seven tables where the hand was played.

At three tables, South got to six clubs and made it, losing only a heart trick. At two tables, North bid four hearts, making five. At another table, the final contract was three notrump, making four.

The most spectacular result, by far, occurred at the table where North-South got to seven clubs on the sequence shown.

South's second-hand pass seems strange, since practically everyone holding his cards would have opened the bidding with one club. South attempted to make up for his pass by bidding strongly thereafter, but his final bid of seven clubs seems excessive under the circumstances. However, there would not be much point to belaboring his bidding, since he wound up making the grand slam!

West had no clear-cut lead and, after great deliberation, chose the five of spades as his opening shot. He was hoping to talk South out of a finesse if dummy had the A-Q, which seemed likely to the bidding. This lead proved disastrous when South, having no better way to avoid a heart loser, played low from dummy — hoping West had the king.

When this proved to be the case, South was able to score all the tricks. He continued with a spade, ruffed a diamond, ruffed another spade and another diamond, and so made the grand slam.

Had West made the safer lead of a trump, he would have been 2,240 points better off!

"WHY DO THE HEATHEN RAGE?" Psalms 2 and Acts 4:25

The late great Evangelist "Billy Sunday" said "PUT A POLE CAT IN THE PARLOR: WHICH CHANGES FIRST? PARLOR, OR POLE CAT?" He did not give the answer to this problem, probably thinking all would have sense enough to figure it out! Surely there has been tremendous change in Churches since his day! Could it be caused due to Spiritual Pole Cats getting in the Church? The 10th chapter of Leviticus tells of "THE FIRE OF GOD" FLASHING UP AND BURNING TO DEATH two of The High Priest Aaron's sons because of their offering "Strange Fire" in a worship service!

The following is a reprint of the article in this column on May 5th, 1967:

In the 5th chapter of Amos, God tells His people He "hates" and "despises" their offerings of worship and will not accept them. There is nothing to their worship — except offense — unless they rise up and put away evil, crime, lawlessness, etc. with which their land is filled, and with which their land is defiled. Verses 21-24: "I hate, I despise your feast days, ... Though you offer Me burnt offerings and your meat offerings, I will not accept them; neither will I regard the peace offerings. ... Take thou away from Me the noise of thy songs: for I will not hear the melody of thy viols. ... BUT LET JUDGEMENT RUN DOWN AS WATERS, AND RIGHTEOUSNESS AS A MIGHTY STREAM!"

The article in this column two weeks ago told about the writer's effort to obey this command of God to "Let judgement run down as waters, and righteousness as a mighty stream" in his contact and experience with a hold-up man. Quote: I told Mr. Hold-up I had the responsibility and power of the law in my hands, his body would probably now be in his grave, and this evil spirit — unless he truly repented, and if I don't take long to repent — would be in hell with his "daddy, the Devil!" For with two witnesses, or definite proof of his guilt he would have been shot at sunrise or sunset, whichever was nearest! Genuine Christianity don't tolerate evil! One branch of Christianity is charged by God Almighty to take vengeance for Him and do away with evil against law and order. Read the 13th chapter of Romans. The Bible not only says "Resist the Devil," but it also says "Give no place to the Devil!"

What do you think? If men knew this was the law in Atlanta, and knew and believed it would be promptly and faithfully enforced, would it not do away with hold-up pests? If it was known that this was the law regarding murder, rape, homosexuality (crimes for which God Almighty's Law demands the death penalty), and men believed and knew it would be promptly and faithfully enforced, would it not cleanse the city of murder, rape, homosexuality, etc., etc.? Would you like to live in a city, a state, a nation where these abominations have been stamped out? I would! I expect to in due time. Abraham, The Friend of God, The Father of the Faithful, "looked for a city which hath foundations whose builder and maker is God." At least three times God promises that "the earth shall be full of His knowledge and glory of The Lord as the waters cover the sea." Where will you be then in view of your present attitude, and actions, and witnessing concerning the abominations that fill the earth almost as the waters do the seas? Your present attitude, and actions, and witnessing concerning the Abomination of "Taking the Name of The Lord thy God in vain" by claiming to be a Christian and remaining a member of His Church, concerning Sabbath Desecration, dishonoring of parents, and the abominations of murder, rape, homosexuality, stealing, covetousness, etc.?

May another question be asked for your consideration? Can one be a Christian that rejects Capital Punishment? Was not Christ's Crucifixion on the Cross Capital Punishment? Though innocent He offered Himself to die for the guilty! "GOD SO LOVED THE WORLD THAT HE GAVE HIS ONLY BEGOTTEN SON" — gave Him for Capital Punishment that God's righteousness and holy Law might be carried out: "the soul that sinneth shall die" — THAT WHOEVER BELIEVETH IN HIM MIGHT NOT PERISH BUT HAVE EVERLASTING LIFE." "Believe in Him," that He substituted His Sinless Self and took Capital Punishment that my sinful Self might live eternally a redeemed soul!

"I THOUGHT ON MY WAYS, AND TURNED MY FEET UNTO THY TESTIMONIES. I MADE HASTE, AND DELAYED NOT TO KEEP THY COMMANDMENTS." Psalm 119:59, 60.

"YE THAT LOVE THE LORD, HATE EVIL." Psalm 97: 10.
"FOR THIS IS THE LOVE OF GOD, THAT WE KEEP HIS COMMANDMENTS. AND HIS COMMANDMENTS ARE NOT GRIEVOUS." 1st John 5:3.

Assessment Policies Investigated

By NANCY HICKS
Star Staff Writer

The Lancaster County attorney's office is looking into procedures used by the county assessor to determine the value of real estate sold in 1971 and 1972.

The investigation, sparked by information supplied by Lincoln Telephone and Telegraph Co., will probably not lead to any criminal charges, County Atty. Ron Lahners said.

At worst, the check into operations of the county assessor's office practices could show that incorrect procedures were used to arrive at sales values during those two years, Lahners said.

County Assessor Fritz Meyer contends the investigation is "absolutely political, instigated on behalf of Jan Gauger who is running for re-election as county commissioner."

"This isn't anything new; it's been talked about for three or four years," said Meyer, contending that the release of information to Lahners was timed to benefit the Gauger campaign.

The question involves whether Meyer's office improperly or even illegally changed figures on the confidential sales reports for real estate transactions that go to the state tax commissioner.

Meyer does not deny that some real estate sales values were lowered on the confidential reports by his staff members during the years of the telephone company study. But he does contend that there was nothing illegal in the changes.

When a property was sold and a confidential statement filed, Meyer said his staff would check with the buyer to see if that sale price included any personal property like rugs, drapes, stove, refrigerator, washer and drier.

If the buyer indicated that the sale price did include a percentage for personal property, Meyer's staff would put that amount down on the confidential form, subtract it from the original sale price and thus show a new and lower "actual sale price."

Meyer said his office stopped the practice in 1974 after the state attorney general ruled that all personal property attached to the home or building had to be included in the sale price for taxation purposes.

Some relators still put in a figure for unattached personal property on today's forms, Meyer said. But his office no longer does any checking or changing on their own.

A lower overall sales value for property sold during a year would make the assessor's current assessment figures look better.

The 1975 reassessment was, by state law, 35% of the actual value. Those assessment figures are still on the books, and each year that actual sale prices go up that 35% figure dwindles.

Current estimates are that the county assessments are closer to 22% of actual value.

Lahners said he was asked by the County Board about two weeks ago to look into the assessor's office matter.

However, Chairman Bruce Hamilton said the board merely asked that information supplied by the telephone company be properly channeled to the county attorney's office.

"Bob Collin (county commissioner), told me that the board of the telephone company was willing to go public with information they had which indicated some kind of errors or inaccuracies or illegalities in the assessor's office," said Hamilton.

"We (the board) felt that the information properly belonged with the county attorney."

The information, a stack of computer printouts, was the result of a 1973 study by the telephone company in preparation for court suits relating to the company's personal property valuations.

High officers at the telephone company could not be reached for comment Friday.

Religion Prompts Refusal Of Transfusions

By GRACIA McANDREW
Star Staff Writer

Citing Leviticus 17 and Acts 15:20, Mrs. Eugene Wysocki of Cozad said Friday morning that religious beliefs prompted her and her husband to refuse blood transfusions for their 6-year-old son.

The child, one of seven children in the Wysocki family, currently is a patient at Lincoln General Hospital.

He is suffering from acute idiopathic thrombocytopenic purpura — a blood disease characterized by improper clotting and easy hemorrhaging and bruising. The cause of the disease is unknown.

Originally in a Kearney hospital under the care of Kearney pediatrician Dr. Kenton Shaffer, Marcus recently was transferred to Lincoln General and placed in the care of Dr. Jon T. Williams, a hematologist who is not using a treatment of blood transfusions, Mrs. Wysocki said.

In September, Dr. Shaffer filed for and received a temporary court order from Buffalo County District Court to force the Wysockis, who are Jehovah's Witnesses, to allow the blood transfusions.

Dr. Shaffer was waiting for a permanent court order allowing him to administer blood in an emergency when the couple moved their son to Lincoln.

"Had I known what it (the ailment) was, I would have found doctors that would have respected our beliefs," Mrs. Wysocki said. "We didn't like putting Dr. Shaffer in this position and I'm sure he feels the same. He is a fine doctor."

According to Mrs. Wysocki, a former nursing student, Marcus never received a blood transfusion while in the Kearney hospital. However, now he is receiving steroids to re-establish the proper blood platelet count, thereby reducing the danger of severe hemorrhaging. He also is receiving antibiotics to fight infection.

She added that the ailment is a "self-limiting, curable disease."

"Generally, they just let the body take over, but since his platelet count was so low," confinement to a hospital and the use of steroids was necessary, she said.

Noting that Marcus' condition is improving under current treatment, Mrs. Wysocki said he may be able to go home in two weeks.

"To look at him, you wouldn't know he was sick unless you would see the bruises," she said. "He is very active, and it is hard for him to be confined to bed."

Trial Ordered After Youth Testifies

Papillion (AP) — A young witness said he saw the father of Christopher Nelsen, 7, punch the boy with his fist, then throw the youngster against the house.

Following a three-hour preliminary hearing in Sarpy County Court Thursday, Judge Jeffrey Campbell ordered the father, Leslie John Nelsen Sr., 28, to stand trial in District Court for manslaughter.

Campbell set bond for Nelsen at $10,000.

Young Christopher Nelsen

died after the Aug. 24 incident in the Nelsen yard.

The first witness called by Deputy Sarpy County Atty. Dean Skokan was a youth whose home yard abuts the Nelsen yard. The youngster, Jay Totusek, who turned 12 Thursday, had been playing in the Nelsen yard with the Nelsen boys, Christopher, Lester Jr., 11, and Randy, 2.

Totusek said Randy was climbing a fence when Christopher threw a plastic tricycle, which struck Randy who began crying.

Totusek said as he was walking to the house, Christopher told Lester not to tell his parents. The young witness said the older brother went into the house. The boy's father came out, Totusek testified, and "just punched him with his fist."

The witness said Christopher was "gasping or something" when he fell by the house. Totusek said the father "picked him up by the shirt and threw him against the house."

After the speech, Father Hupp said, Gromyko went to U.S. Ambassador William Scranton and "registered a strong complaint that a man of the cloth was in the U.S. delegation."

Father Hupp said he was backed by his colleagues. He said Scranton said that maybe the protest "means we're getting to the fellow."

A NATION'S GREATNESS

During this Bicentennial year, we remember especially the covered wagon—and the days when vast stretches of fertile farming land and rich mining country lured the pioneers across our western plains.

Packed in these lumbering vehicles were camping materials, stores of food and medicines, clothing and tools and weapons, for danger lurked everywhere.

These were the rugged people who settled our West, and bore the torch of civilization across plain and mountain to the Pacific.

But the covered wagons carried something besides the pioneers and their material belongings westward. They carried the faith of a great people, and they planted it in every village and settlement.

Faith is the foundation on which the West was built—and the East had been built before it. Faith in God and the right, in people and work and prayer . . . this is the true source of a nation's greatness.

Every church spire pointing heavenward blazens the secret of our country's strength.

CU Plans To Cut NU Off At The Pass

Record Crowd To Watch Big 8 Opener

By BOB OWENS
Star Sports Editor

Boulder, Colo. — It will be Nebraska's passing game against Colorado's option running attack when the teams kick off the Big Eight Conference football season at 2:30 p.m., Lincoln time, Saturday at refurbished Folsom Field.

First Lady Betty Ford will be among a sellout crowd of over 53,000, which will be an all-time Colorado record. Previous best crowd was 52,128 for the 1972 Nebraska game. Sunshine and 72 degree temperature is the weatherman's prediction.

Nebraska, preseason Big Eight favorite, hasn't lost here since 1960 and the Huskers are favored again, this time by seven points. Colorado has won three games in a row since dropping its opener while NU takes a 3-0-1 mark into the game.

"Colorado was a lot better team in the first game than the score indicates (Texas Tech 24-7)," Nebraska coach Tom Osborne said. "Most of its problems were caused by turnovers."

Turnovers also prevented an impressive victory over Drake last week (45-24) and CU's Bill Mallory has made elimination of mistakes a prime area of concentration this week.

Mallory has decided to go with Jeff

Knapple at quarterback after the transfer from UCLA did so well against Drake. Knapple, who had only three plays at Washington and 38 against Miami, generated 356 yards of offense in 30 downs against Drake. CU scored five of the seven times it had the ball with Knapple at the helm.

Tailback Tony Reed is CU's top runner with 395 yards in 83 carries. His strength is in breaking away from would-be tacklers. He didn't play last year against the Huskers.

Injuries in Nebraska's backfield have been a concern this week, but it appears all but reserve I-back Dave Gillespie will be ready even though I-backs Monte Anthony and Richard Berns and fullback Dodie Donnell aren't completely healed.

Ostern brought along sophomores Byron Stewart and Isaiah Hipp just in case the front-liners go down. Gillespie didn't make the trip.

Colorado's injuries all appear to be at linebacker where Brian Cabral (knee sprain) and Bart Roth (bruised shoulder) aren't 100 per cent and Bill Muxlow is recovering from mononucleosis.

"Knapple looked very good and showed a lot of poise against Drake," Mallory said. "He made things happen." When Knapple passes, his prime targets will be Steve

Coaches' Capsules

Colorado's Bill Mallory: "Jeff Knapple (CU quarterback) is playing with a great deal of poise. He has shown good quickness on the option game. He has attacked the end, exhibited good ability in planting his feet and getting up field. I've felt all along he could handle the option."

Nebraska's Tom Osborne: "This is the game we've been shooting for. This is the start of the Big Eight. We're going to face a very keyed up and well prepared team and I hope we take the same kind of team with us. I think we will."

Gauntly, split end, Emery Moorehead and Billy Waddy, wingbacks, and tight end Don Hasselbeck.

"I don't see any difference in Nebraska again this year," Mallory said. "They are a great football team, a power team with a good offense and a tough defense. They have fine personnel everywhere again. I think their offensive line is better this year and (Vince) Ferragamo is definitely better this year. I also like that big fullback, Dodie Donnell."

"Nebraska's defense is led by the best pair of tackles anywhere in (Mike) Fultz and (Ron) Pruitt. They are aggressive, active and mean. The rest of their defense is great, too. But that's their tradition at Lincoln and they have a fine history on defense."

Mallory, who came here three years ago with a reputation as a defensive strategist, has put together his best defensive unit so far. The Buffaloes rank second only to Nebraska in rushing defense in the Big Eight.

A year ago the Buffs suffered eight turnovers against the Huskers and lost 63-21.

"That was a very strange game," Osborne said. "I don't think we can plan on something like that happening again. We must be prepared and as ready as Colorado will be and I think we will be."

KC, Yankees Square Off; Rain In Philly

By The Associated Press

Kansas City Royals center fielder Amos Otis will be batting in the leadoff position for the first time in five years Saturday when the Royals host the New York Yankees for the first game of the American League playoffs.

Meanwhile, in Philadelphia, where the Phillies' Steve Carlton is scheduled to start against Don Gullett of the Cincinnati Reds, the weatherman has predicted a 100 per cent chance of rain that is almost certain to postpone the National League playoff a day.

In Kansas City, Royals manager Whitey Herzog said he hoped the change would inject some life into the lineup, which packed little punch through the final month of the 1976 season despite winning the first American League West title in their eight-year history.

"I just wanted to get something going," shrugged Herzog, who said the rest of the lineup would see few adjustments.

Otis who hasn't led off since 1971, will be followed by third baseman George Brett, designated hitter Hal McRae, first baseman John Mayberry, right fielder Al Cowens, left fielder Tom Poquette, second baseman Frank White, shortstop Fred Patek and catcher Buck Martinez.

Poquette has alternated with Jim Wohlford in the leadoff spot most of the season, while Mayberry was batting in the fifth position through the final weeks because of a decrease in his home run production.

New York Manager Billy Martin also had a surprise in his lineup, with the announcement that Elliott Maddox would bat seventh and play right field. Maddox missed all but the last few games of the season while recovering from knee surgery.

Martin has designated Catfish Hunter, 17-15, as his starting pitcher in the opener, while Herzog plans to go with left-hander Larry Gura, 4-0.

In Philadelphia, the National Weather Service said late Friday that there was a "100 per cent chance" of rain. A slow, steady rain. Not the kind that can be waited out, but the kind that forces postponements.

The Phillies office announced that if the Saturday game cannot be played, the first game of the best-of-five series will be played at 2:45 p.m., CDT, Sunday — which was the scheduled starting time for the second game.

First game tickets would be honored then.

The second game would start at 12 noon CDT, Monday, which is scheduled as a travel day between Philadelphia and Cincinnati. The third, fourth and fifth games, if needed, would be played Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday in Cincinnati.

With a rainout, this best-of-five series would have to be played in five consecutive days, with no Monday break. That, said Manager Danny Ozark, could give his underdog Phillies a slight advantage against last year's World Series winners.

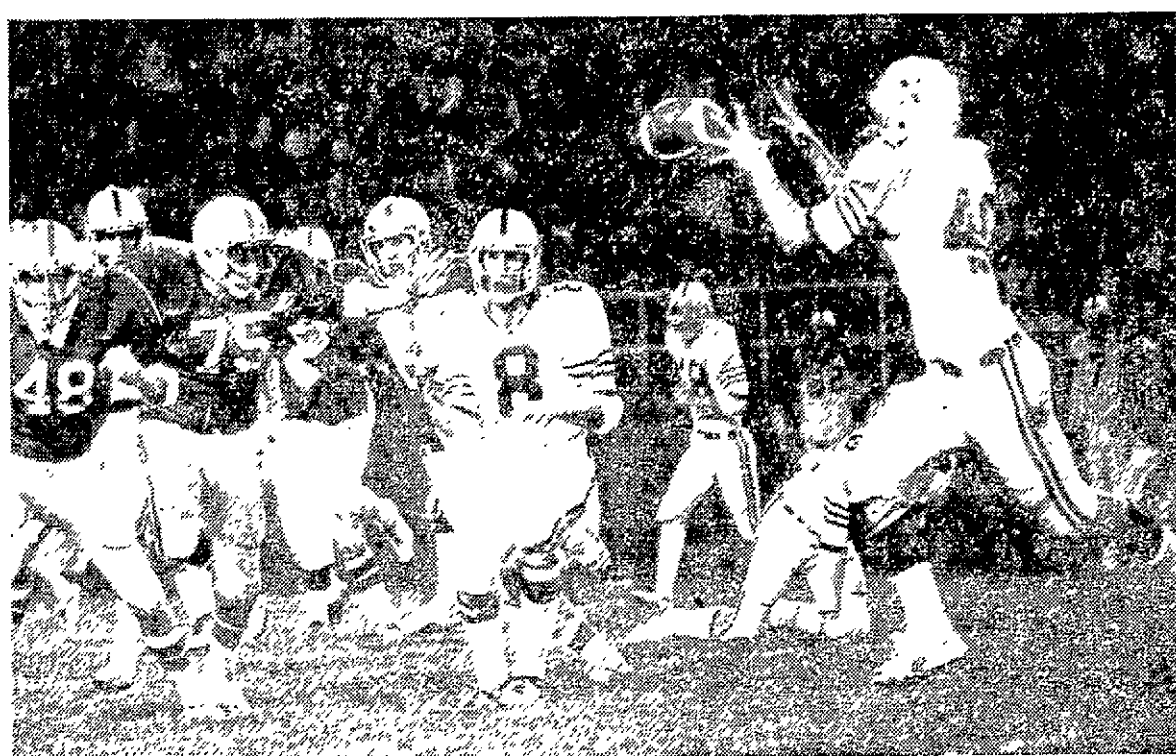

"If anything, rain would give us a bit of an edge because of the pitching," Ozark said. "I've got a five-man rotation ready to work."

In Carlton, the Phils have a contender for the Cy Young Award, emblematic of pitching supremacy. The 32-year-old left-hander was 20-7 in 1976, his third 20-victory season, and was fourth in National League strikeouts with 195. He was 11-2 at home.

Lincoln Northeast quarterback Tom Svehla (8) pitches back to Steve Damkroger (40), who lost the fumble in the second quarter Friday night at Seacrest Field. Lincoln East's Kurt Sorenson (48), Tim Spahn (75) and Dean Nelson (65) chase Damkroger. Northeast fumbled four times but held on to shut out East, 7-0.

Northeast Upends East

By CHUCK SINCLAIR
Prep Sports Writer

The stakes weren't near as high as in last year's showdown between unbeaten East and Northeast, but it didn't dampen Northeast's enthusiasm or East's disappointment following the Rockets' 7-0 homecoming spoiler before 5,641 at Seacrest Field Friday night.

The rankings of last year just weren't there, as East entered the game at 2-3 and Northeast 1-4, but when Northeast's Leonard Swenson deflected the final pass from East quarterback Todd Hinkle, the Rockets' side of the stadium erupted in screams as if a state title had just been won.

Like the variance in last year's records, both teams' offenses underwent major changes prior to the game.

Northeast's leading ground-gainer Joe Prai was sidelined by injuries, as was East's starting quarterback Chip Carmichael.

And the Rockets were also sporting a new quarterback in Tom Svehla in an attempt to get some spark back into a struggling offense.

One of East's running backs, junior Steve Vensky just checked out his varsity game jersey for the first time Friday, and another, Mike Borchert, was switched from primarily defensive duty to offense.

The newcomers performed well, but East just wasn't able to get on the board.

With the inexperience came a raft of turnovers, some crucial, as Northeast lost four of five fumbles and East one of two, plus the loss of possession three times on pass interceptions.

Besides Steve Damkroger's 92 yards rushing to go with two interceptions and another 5 yard reception, the game was a defensive struggle.

Both teams lost crucial fumbles in the first period. In its second possession, Damkroger fumbled on the Rockets' 27-yard line giving East excellent field position.

But after driving down to the LNE three yard line, aided by a 16 yard run from Hinkle, the East signal caller let a pitch get away and Northeast's John Berry pounced on the ball at the 9-yard line.

"That was a very important break for us," Northeast coach Bob Els admitted. "It's been a long time coming. Especially the way the season's been going."

Northeast's deepest penetration of the first half was late in the second quarter to the 30-yard line while East managed to move to the Rockets' 18-yard line before Jay Marshall came up with the second interception. Two plays before the end of the first half.

Neither team was able to get a first down in the second half until Northeast started its scoring drive after Damkroger's second interception at the Rockets' 16-yard line late in the third quarter.

The drive covered 74 yards in nine plays with Damkroger scoring from four yards out with 11:51 left in the game.

A 39-yard pass from Svehla to Jerry Dittenber to the East 23-yard line was the big play aiding the scoring effort.

Coach Lee Zentic's Spartans failed to get a first down the entire second half as the Rocket defense limited them to just 12 total yards, six rushing and six passing.

"The defense was outstanding," Els shouted to his squad in the winners' locker room.

"Every other ballgame we've been ahead in with a chance to win, the defense hasn't been able to hold on," Els said. "So after we scored our touchdown, we got together on the sideline and decided not to let it happen again."

Els praised the total team effort and especially Damkroger. "Steve Damkroger is some football player," he said.

"Damkroger, among others, played a heck of a football game."

Svehla also drew praise for his first quarterbacking start.

"It's kind of an unfortunate situation for Doug (Berka)," Els said of the switch from Berka to Svehla. "It's nothing Doug has done wrong, but just the fact that we weren't clicking."

"Doug probably could have done just as good a job as Tom, and that was pretty good," Els added. "But for a player like Doug not to get to play, it's just too bad. They're both fine football players."

Now, with both teams 2-4 for the season, East has its work cut out next Friday with another intra-city clash, against Southeast, a strong playoff contender.

GI, Knights Seek T-N Football Lead

Sole leadership in the Trans-Nebraska Conference is at stake Saturday night when eighth-rated Lincoln Southeast and fifth-rated Grand Island collide at Seacrest Field.

Southeast leads the league standings with a 3-0 record. Grand Island is second with a 2-0-1 mark. The Islanders, however, are 4-0-1 overall, after a season-opening scoreless tie against Lincoln High.

The Knights (3-1-1) have had tougher sledding the past month since an impressive 25-0 season-opening triumph over Lincoln Northeast.

"I saw them play that first game of the year and I thought Southeast was one of the best high school teams I'd ever seen," Grand Island coach Ken Fischer said.

"They played super defense. They ran. They threw the ball. They did everything a football team is supposed to do," he added.

The Island coaching staff has scouted Southeast twice since then — against Fremont and Hastings — and the Knights have proved more human.

"They weren't able to put it all together," Fischer said, "but they're still an impressive football team. I liked the way Ed Davis cut back on that option against Hastings. I didn't know he could run that well."

Davis, Southeast's senior quarterback, has added a new dimension to the Knights' attack with his running. But his passing has dipped to only a 78-yard per game average and he has suffered six interceptions.

Fischer admits Southeast's less effective aerial game has surprised him. "I know they can throw the ball," he said. "Why, I think that (Gary) Hager caught 11 passes from Davis out here last year."

Defense has kept Grand Island rugged in a four-game winning streak. The Islanders scored only two touchdowns in each of their last three outings against Fremont, North Platte and Columbus.

"It's been nothing but exciting games for us all year," Fischer noted. "I'm sure Saturday night's game will be no different."

Chuck Van Werden Fills in For Hewitt

Lincoln Southeast coach Frank Solich said Friday linebacker Will Hewitt (strained knee) and middle guard Felix White (broken hand) will not suit up for the Grand Island game.

That means Chuck Van Werden will have to fill in at linebacker and Lane Nelson at middle guard, according to Solich.

"We have confidence in Chuck and Lane," Solich said, "but it's tough to lose two excellent physical football players like them because Grand Island is so big and physical to match up with."

Links Dominate Millard

Millard — Lincoln High School's football team could have been forgiven here Friday night for thinking past Millard to next week's showdown with No. 3-rated Ralston.

But if it was, it didn't show by the score as Larry Frost's Link's dominated Millard by a 25-7 score.

"We just go out and try to win as many games as we can," Frost said after the Eastern 1-80 Conference contest. "Ralston happens to be next, and we'll just go out and see what we can do with them."

The Links, now 4-1-1 for the season, had little trouble stopping Millard's pesky squad, which has played many of its opponents closer than its 1-5 record might indicate.

Udoak Udoia scored twice on short runs, one of one yard and the other of five yards, as Lincoln hustled to a comfortable 19-0 halftime lead.

"We got the ball back at mid-field with about a minute and a half left before intermission and scored in five to six plays and that pretty well put the ball game out of reach," Frost explained. It was Udoia's five-yard burst which capped that offensive.

Frost was happy with his team's effort. "I think we played pretty well both ways."

Dean Castens had a good night, Ralph McWilliams played well on defense at his monster position and Alvin Moore, usually at split end, switched over the tight end and did a good job."

Frost commented.

He is expected to be ready for the Ralston game, as is Mike Scanlon, senior offensive center, who was held out of the Millard game with a sprained ankle.

Dave Barron, filled in for Scanlon and drew Frost's praise.

"This was a key game, we got beat last week, 7-0 by Lincoln Southeast and we had to bounce back. We did it real, real, well," Frost said.

Castellini Wins Duran's Title

Madrid (UPI) — Miguel Angel Castellini of Argentina out-pointed title holder Jose Duran of Spain in a bruising 15-round battle Friday night to win the World Boxing Association light middleweight title.

Both fighters were bloodied in the left eyebrow, and Castellini, who pressed the attack all the way, also bled from the nose. Duran took a count of eight in the third round of the fight before a capacity crowd of 12,000 at the sports pavilion.

Duran, who won the title from Japan's Kamikaze Wajima on May 18 this year, was defending his title for the first time. He weighed in at 153.7 pounds while Castellini weighed 152.58.

Duran's purse was $45,000 while the victorious Castellini received $15,000.

The partisan crowd disagreed with the verdict and Castellini's manager Tito Lectorre admitted it was a "very narrow victory."

Royal Offers Exeter, 22-16 Reward

By United Press International

They take their college football very seriously in the Southwest. So much so, in fact, that spying on an opponent isn't as preposterous as it sounds.

At least that's the opinion of University of Texas Coach Darrell Royal, who has offered a $10,000 reward to both University of Oklahoma Coach Barry Switzer and an alleged spy if they each agree to take lie detector tests.

And even if the polygraph proves inconclusive concerning the use of spies on Texas practice sessions, Royal says he still will donate $10,000 to the favorite charity of each of the accused.

The impetus for the allegations, Royal said, came from a former Texas student in Houston who told him a spy had been taking information to the Oklahoma coaching staff the past several years.

Coincidentally or not, third-ranked Oklahoma has beaten No. 14 Texas five years in a row in the annual clash. The two teams meet again Saturday in the Cotton Bowl in Dallas.

The former UT student, Tony Herry, 34, an oil and gas retailer, said a one-time business associate told him he spied on Texas workouts.

The alleged spy, Herry said, was a former coaching associate of Oklahoma defensive coach Larry Lacey at another school. He also said the unnamed spy revealed Texas' strategy last year to Oklahoma coaches and in 1972 when Oklahoma blocked a quick kick by Texas, something the Longhorns had not used in four previous years.

When contacted, Switzer immediately denied the allegations.

"I have never asked anyone to spy on Texas or any opponent," Switzer said. "We always hear rumors about opponents' preparations. Even this past week I have received calls saying Texas would be in a new offensive formation with (fullback) Earl Campbell as tailback and a quarterback throwing."

Both top-ranked Michigan and second-ranked Pittsburgh face breathers Saturday, the Wolverines hosting Michigan State and the Panthers hosting Louisville.

Georgia, meanwhile, ranked No. 4 following its upset shutout of Alabama last week, faces a difficult test Saturday when it plays Mississippi at Oxford, Miss.

Nebraska, ranked fifth, is at Colorado, sixth-ranked UCLA, its starting backfield depleted by injuries to Wendell Tyler, Theotis Brown and Wally Henry, hosts Stanford, seventh-ranked Maryland is at North Carolina State, eighth-ranked Kansas at Oklahoma State, ninth-ranked Missouri at Kansas State and 10th-ranked Southern California at Washington State.

Dorchester Hits Exeter, 22-16

By RANDY YORK
Prep Sports Editor

Dorchester — Dorchester calls its defense the black and blue squad. Exeter can understand why after becoming the Longhorns' sixth straight victim here Friday night, 22-16, in a Pioneer Conference football game.

Exeter managed only four first downs, one by penalty, and 51 yards total offense against a "defense without stars," as Dorchester coach Gary Cooper likes to refer to it.

"There aren't any stars out there, really," Cooper said. "It's a lot of hard work and a well-balanced effort. We just hit. That's the key word. We stress that all week."

Among those taking it the most seriously are senior linebacker Jerry Hostetler, senior tackle Al Busbom and junior nose guard Ron Kahle.

"Those guys would let us get anything going," said Exeter coach Russ Sears after his Eagles dropped to a 3-2 record. "Dorchester deserves every bit of its reputation on defense."

The Longhorns, the No. 4 rated Class D team in the Sunday Journal and Star, now have given up only 76 yards total offense in a 6-0 start.

It shouldn't have been so close. Dorchester generated 18 first downs and 287 yards total offense. But the Longhorns got

Two Face Charges In Heist

A 16-year-old youth and a 23-year-old woman were charged in Lancaster County Court Friday afternoon with robbing the Belmont Jack and Jill grocery store earlier in the day.

Judge Jeffrey Cheuvront arraigned Meriel Evon Hahn, of 2625 N. 9th St., and Anthony L. Reyes, of Lawrence, Kan., with robbery.

Authorities said a 15-year-old girl also may be charged in the robbery but that investigation still is under way as to her involvement in the incident.

Early Friday morning a young man wearing a ski mask robbed Charles Neal, night manager of the store, as he was leaving to deposit two money bags at a nearby bank. The youth was armed with a small automatic pistol, police said. After taking the money, the youth fed on foot from the store.

Assistant Police Chief Roger LaPage said all the money taken in the robbery was recovered. However, police and Jack and Jill officials refused to disclose how much was involved.

The two teenagers and Ms. Hahn were arrested Friday, LaPage said, because police officers obtained a description of a young man and woman who had been seen in the Jack and Jill grocery store on several occasions.

Judge Cheuvront fixed bond for Ms. Hahn at $5,000 and fixed bond for Reyes at $10,000. A preliminary hearing date will be set Oct. 19.

Thompson Admits He Shot Smith

Mark William Thompson, accused of first degree murder in the shooting death of his friend Thomas Smith, changed his plea from innocent to guilty of second degree murder Friday.

Lancaster District Judge Dale Fahrbruch took the plea under advisement after conducting a hearing on the degree of homicide involved. Fahrbruch could find Thompson guilty of second degree murder or manslaughter.

Thompson, 25, is accused of killing Smith, 26, on the night of April 10 following an argument between the two men at the home of Thompson's sister, Rose Hicks, 1817 N. 30th.

Following a quarrel among various family members, Thompson shot Smith with a .22-caliber rifle he purchased earlier that day, Deputy County Atty. Bob Gibson told the court.

Smith ran out of the house and fell on the sidewalk. Thompson called for an ambulance, Gibson said.

In waiving his right to a jury trial, Thompson told Fahrbruch he was not forced into changing his plea or into forgoing a jury trial.

Thompson said he was only trying to protect himself when the rifle discharged. He said he had gotten into an argument with Smith and that when Smith looked like he was going to strike him, Thompson moved the rifle in an attempt to block the punch. Instead, the rifle discharged, Thompson said.

Fahrbruch pointed out that by pleading guilty to second degree murder the defendant was forgoing his argument that the rifle went off in self-defense.

Fahrbruch concluded that a crime had been committed, that the rifle purchased by Thompson and taken to the house was the rifle which fired the fatal bullet and that Thompson pulled the trigger.

Man Charged In Omaha Slaying

Omaha (AP) — An Omaha man was charged Friday in the slaying of Raymond Williams, 26, three years ago in an Omaha bar.

The Douglas County attorney's office said Timothy Brown, 26, of Omaha was charged with second degree murder in the Nov. 29, 1973 slaying.

Police said Brown had been questioned shortly after the fatal shooting but released for lack of evidence.

Homicide Lt. James Perry said Brown was arrested at his home Thursday. Police began working on the case again about two months ago after receiving new information.

Relatives said Turner had been employed for two days by the South Bend, Ind., branch of Armco Steel Corp.

The Sarpy County sheriff's office said Turner had been

Zorinsky Questions President's Vision

Kearney (AP) — Edward Zorinsky, Democratic candidate for the U.S. Senate, says President Ford "must have had a seeing eye dog leading him around" during a visit to Poland last year.

The Omaha mayor, campaigning in Kearney Thursday, referred to Ford's debate statement Wednesday night that eastern European nations are not dominated by Russia.

Zorinsky, who appeared at a Buffalo County Democratic rally, said at a news conference that he was in Poland last year when Ford was there.

The senatorial candidate said that when he heard the Ford comment "immediately to my mind came the fact that President Ford must have had a seeing eye dog leading him around."

Zorinsky said he talked to people in Warsaw and the presence of Russia was "very evident."

James Hansen, Democratic candidate for Congress from the 3rd District who also was at the rally, said he was stationed in Berlin while in the service and comments similar to those of Zorinsky.

Zorinsky said to hear the President make the comment "brings fear to my heart, because if he is that misinformed or does not realize what's happening over there on that issue, God help this nation."

Ford-Dole Leaders Named
